

Core Collections Team and Advisory Group Credentials

Core Collections at EBSCO Information Services

One of the greatest strengths of the H. W. Wilson Core Collections is the combined expertise of the librarians who select titles for the products. The Core Collections team at EBSCO Information Services includes librarians with experience in collection development, cataloguing, digital content management, metadata and readers' advisory, in addition to specific subject area knowledge. They have practical library experience in academic, public and special library settings, bringing an unparalleled breadth of knowledge to the Core Collections title selection and product management process.

Core Collections Advisory Group

In addition to the Core Collections team employed by EBSCO Publishing, the title selection process is supported by the Core Collections Advisory Group. This group is comprised of exalted public, academic and school librarians who are experts in their fields, many of whom have served terms on selection and award committees for the American Library Association, such as the Newbery Award, the Caldecott Award, and the Printz Award. They represent a diversity of geographic and demographic areas throughout the country, and have practical library experience in their assigned subjects. Using a combination of in-person meetings, email discussions, and shared online documents the advisors participate in all levels of the Core Collections process. In addition to nominating titles advisors recommend product enhancements and assist in the future direction and development of the collections as a whole.
